It's how we connect

Nulkaba resident Peter Torenbeek has been selected to appear on the cover of this year's Hunter Valley Yellow Pages® and White Pages® book which will be distributed throughout Maitland, Cessnock, the Hunter Valley, Newcastle, Lake Macquarie, Port

Stephens and Raymond Terrace from 18 June 2011.

Each year, Sensis, the publisher of the Yellow Pages® and White Pages®, recognises the contribution of local residents in the community by featuring them on the cover of its books.

The theme for this year's covers, Australians Creating a Better Future, recognises people throughout Australia who have made a positive contribution to their community through projects or initiatives that help to make a better future for Australia. These projects have contributed environmentally, economically and/or socially to the local community and will benefit the next generation of Australians.

Lion Peter's selection recognises his commitment to bringing the community together and making the Hunter Valley a better place to live, in the establishment of the Cessnock Shed and Community Garden in 2005.

Lion joined the Cessnock Shed and Community Garden to represent the Cessnock Lions Club – long-time supporters of the project, and the Club and the Shed have developed a strong partnership since establishment. Lion Peter has stuck with the project and is now the President of the Cessnock Shed.

Sensis felt Peter was a great example of an Australian Creating a Better Future and we are delighted to feature him on the cover of the 2011/12 Hunter Valley directory,".
